

The Evening World

ESTABLISHED BY JOSEPH PULITZER. Published Daily Except Sunday by The Evening World Company, Inc. 220 N. W. 42d St. New York, N. Y.

ALL GONE!

WHERE are the issues—the old, familiar issues? Here is Secretary Bryan, dean of issue makers, exhorting the Democrats of Iowa to make "wet or dry" their test of candidates.

While the city fathers are up at Albany telling the legislators how not to impose taxes, maybe they could pick up a few points on the home problem of how to collect 'em.

WHY NOT EVERY SPRING?

THE notable enthusiasm with which all New York—citizens and merchants, helped by willing police and street cleaning authorities—has taken up The Evening World's proposal for a Fashion Sunday Parade suggests making the celebration a regular annual feature.

Rather than to wash the Hotel decided to board and wash with us. No very terrible alternative, either.

SOUND BUSINESS.

$4,771,880.85 NET, the United States Steel Corporation reckons it has saved in the last five years by safeguarding its employees. Manager Close, of the company's Bureau of Safety, Sanitation and Welfare, reports that while the company has spent over $8,000,000 in looking after its workers, casualty expenses have been reduced by much more than double that sum.

April, you begin to grasp the idea.

Hits From Sharp Wits.

Love isn't blind, for it sees in the adored that which others cannot discern.—Deseret News. Most of us are lightning sketch artists when it comes to drawing conclusions.

Letters From the People

True Mathos Here. To the Editor of The Evening World: Just to hasten the silly reason I have named my alphabetical nether garments, thus becoming once again a man of letters.

Why Not? By Maurice Kellen

Comic strip panels with dialogue: 'Municipal Building', 'I want to get married', 'Third floor! Express elevator', 'Third floor! Matrimonial Bureau!', 'Let me off!', 'Anything choice in husbands?', 'We only keep the best', 'Matrimonial Bureau', 'Fourth floor! Marriage license bureau', 'Let us off', 'I am getting nervous', 'He he', 'Eighteen last week', 'Tell it to Oliver', 'Fifth floor! Wedding bureau. Alderman in attendance', 'We want to get off', 'It's a wonderful building', 'The real estate office is just below', 'Thanks, Alderman', 'The wedding was beautiful', 'Where would you like to live?', 'Near my mother', 'Near a tango beer garden', 'Thirteenth floor! Divorces separations', 'Not to day we haven't time. We will come back', 'Municipal Building Renting Office Flats for rent', 'Skip this floor'.

The Dower of Beauty By Marie Montaigne

IT is a wonder of modern science that a woman's skin generally, with the exception of the face, is covered with a thin layer of dead skin (epidermis) which is constantly being shed and replaced by new cells.

BRINGING BLOOD TO THE SURFACE TO REMOVE THE SKIN.

Things You Should Know About Yourself

Fallen Arches. We hear on every side accounts of fallen and broken feet. Compare the shape of the human foot with a picture of a modern high-heeled shoe, and it is supplied with food for reflection.

The Jarr Family Almost Destroys the Jarrs' Home By Roy L. McCardell

MRS. JARR, with the morning paper under her arm as Mr. Jarr might not let his coffee get cold at breakfast while reading it, was carefully combing through the morning mail to see if there was anything for Mr. Jarr that was suspicious.

Have You Added 5,000 New Words To Your Vocabulary This Year?

HAVE you added 5,000 words to your vocabulary in the last twelve months? No? Then you have failed to keep up with the procession. For, according to the best authorities, the English language is growing at the rate of 5,000 words per annum.

A Warrior Prince Known by Numeral

PRINCE HENRY OF REUSS, who was reported killed in battle some time ago, is distinguished from the numerous other princes of his house, who all bear the Christian name of Henry, by the numerals of "XIV," and is the head of the Konrath, or non-reigning branch of the family.

Editorials by Women

EVERY WOMAN HER OWN LAWYER. By Sophie Irene Loeb.

THE main feature of the new Municipal Court Bill pending at Albany is to eliminate "red tape." In cases involving $1,000 or less a person may now go into court and tell his troubles direct to the judge. The summons is returnable in five days.

The Story of Lincoln's Death

Fifty years ago next week our nation's most dramatic tragedy was enacted. Abraham Lincoln, in the hour of his triumph as preserver of the Union, was assassinated.